First Plane Lands Nevada City Airport

C W A ORDERED TO CONTINUE WORK ON CITYS AIRPORT

Fred E. Miller Directed Not to Halt Airport and High School Projects While Others Close

Fred E. Miller, CWA supervisor for the county, this morning received orders from San Francisco headquarters to continue CWA work on the airport and on the high school grounds. Both these projects are to be continued.

He announced that 43 men will be employed at the airport and 14 at the high school athletic field. Those enrolled in these projects will each put in 24 hours a week. The CWA project for improvement of the Pasquale road will, with other projects be discontinued, but most of this crew will be re-employed at the high school and the airport.

CHICAGO AUBURN MINE EMPYOYS 22

The Chicago Auburn mine, between Auburn and Penryn, is erecting a new hoist building, has installed a compressor and is clearing out the old workings. Ore taken out in development work and put through the Amador mill has been yielding about $2,000 gross per month. F. N. Sweet is manager and Mr. Douglass is superintendent. Twenty-two men are employed.

PENNSYLVANIA MINE IN BROWN VALLEY RESUMES

Twenty men are engaged in rehabilitating the Pennsylvania mine in Brown's Valley, Yuba county. The property is situated in the center of the little town itself. Backing the resumption of work in this old property are Albert Burch, formerly superintendent of the Goldfield Consolidated durnig the time it's output was $1,000,000 a month; C. N. Miller San Francisco stock broker and mine operator, and Shperintendent H. W. Whiting, veteran mining engineer of wide experience, are large share holders.

The crew is cleaning out and retimbering the 195-foot shaft and erecting a 50-foot headframe, ore bins, blalksmith shop, hoist house and change rooms. Al Keller's crew is busy putting in the necessary rigging.

YELLOWJACKET BATSMEN TO CLASH WITH AUBURN

Coach Bev Barron for two weeks has been preparing his baseball Yellowjackets, for the Nevada City—Auburn tangle, to be staged at Cashin's field, Wednesday afternoon, at 2:30. Although Coach Barron is away and unable to give a statement, those who will probably see action in Wednesday's game are:

ALUMNI DONATIONS FOR ATHLETIC FIELD

More Nevada City high school alumni are responding to the appeal of the student body for funds to aid the students in completing their new athletic field and tennis courts.

Among the donors who have sent in checks since the Nugget published the list a week ago are:

Mrs. I. Zellerbach, Myers Mobley, Robert Searls, M. S. Rutherford, Lloyd V. Smith, Harry Davey, Eleanor Schreiber, Rolland Wright, and Mamie Meservey.

The total donations of the alumni now amounts to $182.50.

KARL KOPP WOULD PAY OFF ARMORY HALL DEBT

Karl Kopp, candidate for the city council, yesterday stated that in event he is elected he will turn the Fourth of July celebration over to the Nevada City Fire Department to manage. He would devote all funds derived from the various festivities of the day to paying off the firemen's debt on Armory Hall. He believes that one of the first steps taken by the new administration should be reeing the hall from debt, and thinks that proceeds of the Fourth of July should be used for that purpose. There are 175 firemen in the Nevada City fire department, Mr. Kopp declares, and the citizens have always been squarely behind them in all their activities for the community welfare.

BENNETTS OUT OF COUNCIL RACE

Mayor R. J. Bennetts on Saturday, announced that he would not be a candidate for re-election to the city council. He has withdrawn his nomination papers and his name will not appear on the ballot, April 9.

Mr. Bennetts has devoted eight years to the city's service, and he states that he would not have filed a nomination petition last week hed he been assured that other citizens would have sought election.

The many friends of the mayor regret his decision, particularly as two of the city's projects initiated in the last year, the city park and swimming pool and the airport, are not yet completed. Mr. Bennetts has taken a keen interest in these two major improvements and devoted a large part of his time to them with the city council working with him as a unit.

However, since the office of city councilman is honorary, representative citizens of the community he has served so well, have expressed to him their gratitude and the hope that the good work done by the council during his tenure will be continued.

There remain five candidates for three places on the board. Curtis Clark and James Penrose seek to fill the unexpired two-year term of Wade Armstrong, resigned, and Karl Kopp, Benjamin Hall and A. H. Haddy are candidates for the two four-year terms on the city council which are expiring.

MRS. KIMBALL REPORTS RICH GRAVEL IN PLUMAS

Mrs. Kittie Kimball, president and general manager of the Reliance Placer and Quartz holding, near Alleghany, was called to Plumas county, Wednesday to inspect a couple of mining properties. On her return, Mrs. Kimball, who has been interested in mining for eleven years, stated that one claim inspected, was the richest gravel she had ever encountered. She saw more coarse gold and nuggets in three hours than in any other property she had ever visited.

The larger property contains 500 acres of virgin ground and two miles of river channel.

Two men with ordinary water buckets, scooped up the gravel from a 10 foot shaft they are sinking and have been making all the way from $8 to $35 a day from the surface down. In a 30 foot shaft, they took out two nuggets valued at $35.

Mrs. Kimball recently built a nice home in Nevada City. However, she is now planning to take an interest in and to help develop the Plumas property.

Miss Dora Meek, of San Francisco, is spending the Easter holidays with her aunt, Mrs. Elsie Willoughby.

Miss Eleanor Willoughby has so far recovered from a recent attack of acute appendicitis that she is able to be up and around.

Jack Wolff Pilots Waco Plane To Easy Landing

Runway is Soft But Pilo Lands and Takes Off Easily—Event is Broadcast by Hollywood KNX

BY EDW. C. UREN

The honors for landing the first airplane at Nevada City's new airport, went to Jack Wolff, well known aviator and business man of Grass Valley, yesterday when he piloted a two seater Waco plane weighing 2,700 pounds gracefully onto the 1200 by 150 foot runway, prepared during the past week.

Mr. Wolff had sent word during the morning that he would attempt a landing at the field at 11:00 o'clock, but word came so late that only a few people were on the ground to witness the event.

A small smudge fire had been lighted to indicate the air current and, after circling the field once the pilot dropped gracefully down to a smooth landing from the Sugar Loaf side, stopped within a few hundred feet and taxied the plane back to where the spectators were gathered. He was enthusiastically congratulated by those present. K. N. X. broadcast the event from Hollywood last night.

AIRMAIL PILOT IS VISITOR

Mr. Wolff was accompanied by the owner of the plane, Mr. L. A. Perrette, himself an experienced aviator who has flown the various U. S air mail routes for the past five and a half years and who holds a license entitling him to fly one, two or three motored planes.

The surface of the field, although quite smooth, is soft and offered considerable resistance to the small tires of the plane. On account of this condition and a prevailing cross wind Mr. Perette returned to Grass Valley alone in the plane but seemed to have no particular difficulty as the plane left the ground after a run of about 600 feet.

NOT READY FOR HEAVY PLANES

The area so far conditioned is too short for the landing of the heavier army planes at this time. The improvised runway was made in preparation for next Sunday's Easter morning service when it was hoped Captain Allen Chapman would be able to fly here from Monrovia, where he is stationed. It is understood however, that he will be unable to come.

Tomorrow will be the last work day under CWA at the airport and a suspension of all operations for a period of two weeks is expected, pending the newly organized relief work.

So far, the sum of $7,166 has been expended on the airport and it is probably 75 per cent completed.

HUGE CROSS FOR EASTER

Mr. Arthur Dow is busy at the airport hewing a thirty foot cross to be erected for the Easter service. This cross will be erected at the brow of the hill overlooking the city and will be allowed to remain for future occasions. Mr. Dow has volunteered to build, erect and paint the cross and his offer is much appreciated by the committee.

JACKSON'S GROCERY REMODELED, MODERNIZED

The J. J. Jackson grocery store is now completely remodeled, making it one of the most modern in Nevada City.

The massive old beams of the ceiling, have been covered, new counters and show cases added, the office remodeled, low shelving, new lights and a nice fresh coat of cream and green paint gives a most pleasing appearance to the whole interior of this popular store.

The late J. J. Jacrson Sr., was the first to have a telephone installed in Nevada City and the number is still "One." The store is the oldest in point of continuous existence in this city.

FOUR EMPLOYED ON FOSS GRAVEL CLAIMS

Jim Allen and John Muscardini, of Nevada City, have a lease on the Foss claims on Bear river, and have about four men employed.

At present, Mr. Allen, with the crew, are drifting and blocking out gravel in the tunnel, which is in quite a distance on the main channel. Estimates give one half mile of channel on the property. About two weeks ago, a good cleanup of coarse gold and nuggets was made with the largest nugget valued at $75. The channel is a branch of the Omega channel, above Washington, now being worked by the Hoge interests.

Mrs. Maurice Kach, of the Maurice Studio, left Grass Valley by motor car Friday, for a business visit to Los Angeles and Hollywood, where she will make a study of the new developments and styles in photography.

DEVELOPING BIG BUZZARD MINE

Five men are employed on the Big Buzzard mine, nine miles northeast of Folsom. This mine was formerly worked in 1912 and the shaft is down 200 feet. The work now going forward is mainly devoted to clearing out the old shaft and drifts and sampling. The ore assays are fairly high but it is refractory. Dave Sharpstone is superintendent and J. P. Foster, foreman.

SEVERAL NEW HOMES ARE NOW BEING BUILT

There are several new homes being built and under construction in Nevada City.

The cement basement for the new home of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Kjorlie, has just been completed.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Fletcher have completed two neat little cottages on the property he purchased from the late Jack Vivian.

Mesdames Jones and Roberts bought the old property in Gold Flat known as the Muller estate and now have practically remodeled the house into a neat two story modern dwelling.

Mr. B. F. Howe, sold a large lot to Messrs. George Bobst and Davidson, a short time ago, and each one is erecting neat little homes.

JOYCE LARSON HOSTESS AT BIRTHDAY PARTY

A most delightful party was given Saturday afternoon by Mrs. Larson Henwood in honor of her daughter, Joyce's 12th birthday.

An Easter color scheme of pink and yellow was carried out in the attractive rooms. The central feature of a prettily arranged table was a delicious birthday cake bearing 12 candles. Easter eggs and tiny chicks were given as favors.

Those invited were: Catherine Davis, Lelia Shaunnessy, Madeline Bettles, Elsie Schreiber, Betty Smith, Adell Stewart, Sylvia Ronning, Betty Lou Krough, Lavon Gates, and the little hostess, Joyce Henwood.

Several hours were spent in playing games on the beautiful lawn. Prize winners were Betty Lou Krough, Betty Smith, Katherine Davis, Madeline Bettles and Sylvia Ronning.

Joyce was the recipient of many pretty birthday gifts.

LIEUT. CHAPMAN CAN'T ACCEPT AIRPORT HONOR

Dr. C. W. Chapman, today received a large budget of news in letters from three sons and a daughter, many items of which will be of general interest. From Dayton, Ohio, where Lieut. Sargent Chapman is stationed at the Wright field, came a description of the terrific cold wave which the East has suffered. Lieut. Chapman, among other interesting comment states that the new army planes are equal to the airmail planes and better than most of the European planes. Lieut. Chapman is manager for the theatrical amateurs who give an occasional play, the last being "The Bride."

Miss Helen Chapman, student at the University of California, wrote that she would probably not be able to come home for the Easter vacation due to her duties on the "Daily Cal," and her part in the Western Students Conference which takes place this week.

Lieut. Muller Chapman, now on duty at San Simeon, gave an interesting resume of his work there.

The fourth letter from Capt. Allen Chapman, stationed at the CCC camp near Monrovia, expressed regret that he would be unable to make the first landing on Nevada City's airport, as invited to do by the Nevada City Chamber of Commerce. Beginning April second, he will be employed in discharging enrollies who leave for other work and when that job is done, enrollment of new members will be undertaken. Flying is not one of his duties, or even pleasures at the camp. There are no planes available and his duties keep him on the ground.

MR. AND MRS. LE MON, OF LAVA CAP, HERE FROM N. Y.

Mr. R. F. LeMon and Mrs. LeMon, arrived last evening by motor car from New York. Mr. LeMon is one of the large stock holders and an executive of the Lava Cap Gold Mining Corporation, and is out here to make an inspection of the property. Within the past few days, Otto E. Schiffner superintendent of the Lava Cap, reports a favorable change in the character of the ore. He states that he had always regarded the property as a good low grade proposition, but with ore uncovered, running high in values, he finds he must change his conception of the mine.

Mr. ad Mrs. LeMon report a wonderful trip by the southern route. They made the distance in 10 days, averaging 400 miles per day.

FIFTY MEN WORKING AT YOU BET GRAVEL MINE

About 50 men are now employed two shifts at the You Bet Mining Co., property, east of Nevada City.

After extensive preparation on the Red Dog side of the big gravel deposit, the company is now practically ready for hydraulic operations there.

On the You Bet or Brownsville side, the company has been hydraulicking gravel for some time. In the last few weeks, a shortage of water has cut down some in the work.

FEBRUARY WINE AND BEER TAX $92,515

SACRAMENTO, March. 26.—The state tax on beer and wine still continues to show an increase over previous months, the total of $92,515 in revenue being collected from this source for the month of February, R. E. Collins, Chairman of the Board of Equalization announced today. This s the largest revenue collected in any one month since the tax became effective. January collections were $75,975.

Of the total receipts for February, 70% represents beer distribution and 30 per cent is for wine. 94 per cent of the beer was distributed by California brewers.

SCOUT COUNCIL TO PLAN FORMATION OF SECOND TROOP

Many Boys Have Joined Recently and New Sponsor and Another Scoutmtser is Sought

The Nevada City district scout council will meet this evening to discuss the creation of another scout troop. Under the scoutmastership of Edd Addington, the troop has grown to 38 members, which considerably more than the number recommended for one scout master.

If a new troop is formed, it will be necessary to obtain the services of a new scoutmaster and a new sponsoring organization. The Native Sons Parlor, of Nevada City, sponsors the present troop.

The council will also discuss the new scout lodge and the plans for getting the logs stripped. Yesterday several members of the council stripped logs at the Nevada City airport, in order that they may be ready and drying for early building operations.

BROUN ENTERS INSANITY PLEA

Fred Broun, former convict, held to answer in the justice court for the murder of James Perry March 9, appeared before Judge Raglan Tuttle in the Superior Court Saturday and pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity. His trial date will be set after services of two alienest, as required by law, shall have been obtained.

Prior to his plea, Attorney Francis Finnegan, appointed by the court to defend Broun, moved that the charges against the defendant be dismissed on the ground that he had never been apprised of his legal rights. Countering this motion, Deputy District Attorney Robert Tharp put on the stand, Sheriff George Carter and Deputy Sheriff Jack Nettle, who swore that on placing Broun under arrest they had apprised him of his legal rights.

The court overruled Attorney Finnegan's motion, holding that having admitted previous convictions for felony his experience, even without the testimony of the sheriff and deputy, should have been sufficient to apprise him of his legal right to counsel and to call witnesses. He referred to the transcript of the testimony in the lower court as showing affirmatively that defendant not only knew his legal rights but exercised them by cross-examining witnesses.

SUPERVISORS APPROVE PLACER MINE DISTRICT

The board of supervisors on Friday formally authorized the formation of the Black Rock Placer Mining district under the new law passed by the last state legislature.

The district includes hydraulic mining ground in the Washington and Relief Hill miing districts. The new law provides that the district may issue bonds, construct dams for retaining debris, and apportion the cost among owners within the district.

SCOUTS PEEL LOGS FOR THEIR NEW LODGE

There was only a small crowd of Boy Scouts and assistants present for pole peeling at the airport yesterday. They succeeded in peeling 25 poles and helped Arthur Dow frame the cross he was constructing for the Easter sunrise services next Sunday.

A group of Scouts have planned to go up Thursday and Friday to peel more poles for their lodge.

Dead Volcanoes in Lake Near Superior's Surface

Volcanoes, both active and defunct, are widespread throughout the world, but the last place we would have thought them to be probably would have been under the waters of Lake Superior, observes a writer in the New Orleans Times-Picayune. And yet a couple of such—the dead variety, thank heaven—have been discovered in the bed of the world's largest fresh water body. At a point midway between Thunder bay and Michipicoten island, in Canadian waters, a shoal has been found, 30 miles from any shelter. There has been discovered a peak 100 feet in diameter covered by only three and a half fathoms of water. A second nearby is smaller and deeper, but both, now to be marked by the Canadian department of marine, are asserted to be the cones or extinct fire mountains.

The question is, shall the peaks be cut down to a safe depth, or shall they be permanently marked and lighted? The first alternative is more costly, but the permanent upkeep of the second is most forbidding. Decision remains to be made.

Why Children Need a Liquid Laxative

The temporary relief children get from unwise dosing with harsh cathartics may cause bowel strain, and even set up irritation in the kidneys. A properly prepared liquid laxative brings a perfect movement. There is no discomfort at the time and no weakness after. You don't have to give the child "a double dose" a day or two later.

Can constipation be safely relieved in children? "Yes!" say medical men. "Yes!" say many mothers who have followed this sensible medical advice: 1. Select a good liquid laxative. 2. Give the dose you find suited to the system. 3. Gradually reduce the dose until the bowels are moving regularly without aid.

An approved liquid laxative (one that is widely used for children) is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. The mild laxative action of this excellent preparation is the best form of help for children—and grown-ups, too. The dose can be regulated for any age or need.

Severe Itching Eruption on Baby's Face and Scalp

Cuticura Healed

"When baby was between two and three months old an eruption appeared on her face and scalp in small, red pimples which became inflated with fluid and later formed a crust giving the skin a very disfiguring appearance. Due to the severe itching baby would scratch, causing bleeding. Not until she was five months old did hair grow on top of her head.

"A friend recommended Cuticura Soap and Ointment so I bought them. After two weeks there was a wonderful improvement, and with the use of one cake of Soap and one box of Ointment she was healed." (Signed) Mrs. W. R. Groves, Lincolnton, Ga., Aug. 10, 1933.

St. Lawrence Waterway Treaty Rejected by Senate Despite President's Efforts—Revamping of Air Mail in Progress—House Passes Bonus Bill.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

DESPITE the fact that President Roosevelt phoned personally to a number of senators of both parties seeking to persuade them to vote for ratification of the St. Lawrence waterway treaty, the pact was defeated in the senate by a vote of 46 to 42. Thus the affirmative vote was far below the required two-thirds of those voting. Party lines were disregarded. Twenty-two Democrats voted against ratification, along with 20 Republicans. In favor of the pact were 31 Democrats, 14 Republicans and 1 Farmer-Laborite.

Senator Lewis

Mr. Roosevelt, it was said in Washington, was decidedly vexed by this defeat of a major administration measure, and he began preparations to resubmit the treaty at a future session of congress. Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois, Democratic whip of the senate and one of the leading opponents of the rejected treaty, predicted that Canada would soon offer the United States a substitute treaty. This may be true, but dispatches reveal that in Montreal, at least, the defeat of the pact was hailed with joy because business men there think the project too expensive to be undertaken at this time. The President's warning that Canada would, on its own initiative, build an all-Canadian waterway seems to be met by this news from Montreal.

Chicago and the Mississippi valley are blamed by Mr. Roosevelt for the rejection of the treaty, and there is no doubt that their arguments against the proposed restriction of diversion of water from Lake Michigan to 1,500 cubic feet a second were potent. This amount, according to Senator Lewis and other Middle West senators, would be wholly inadequate to maintain navigation in the Mississippi waterway. The Atlantic seaboard senators, too, were almost solidly against the treaty.

If the treaty is resubmitted, the clauses concerning the sovereignty of Lake Michigan and the Chicago diversion may be omitted; but Senator Lewis said: "So far as I am concerned—and I believe I speak also for several others—I shall not be satisfied with a mere omission, but shall demand that internationalization of Lake Michigan and the limitation of the sanitary district diversion shall be specifically renounced by Canada."

SENATOR WAGNER of New York, chairman of the national labor board, has put forth a warning that unless "misconstruction" and "evasion" of the collective bargaining provisions of the National Industrial Recovery Act are checked "we may expect to witness a vast swelling of industrial unrest with the coming of spring."

Secretary of Labor Perkins joined with Wagner and other witnesses before the board in urging the passage of Wagner's bill which would create a permanent labor board and outlaw employer influence over the organization of employees. Representatives of the American Federation of Labor demand that employers be forced to recognize the unions and predict general strikes especially in the automobile industry unless prompt action is taken to satisfy the men.

BY DIRECTION of the President, all air mail operations by the army air corps were suspended by Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, chief of the corps, and the drafting of a new schedule that would insure greater safety for the flyers was begun. When the news reached him of the deaths of the ninth and tenth army mail carriers within three weeks Mr. Roosevelt sent out word: "The continuation of deaths in the army air corps must stop." He ordered that the carrying of air mail cease except "on such routes, under such weather conditions and under such equipment and personnel conditions as will insure, as far as the utmost care can provide, against constant recurrence of fatal accidents."

Gen. B. D. Foulois

General Foulois, Brig. Gen. Oscar Westover, chief of air mail operations, and various Post Office department officials built a revised "safety" route with the trans-continental line from Newark to San Francisco as the main line, other routes feeding into it. The intention was to reduce the number of trips on all schedules and to permit less night flying.

Colonel Lindbergh aroused interest by visiting Washington for two days and conferring with Secretary of War Dern. Soon after the secretary named the colonel, Orville Wright and Clarence Chamberlain on a committee to investigate the army carrying of the air mail.

Lindbergh, however, declined to serve on the committee, repeating in his letter to Secretary Dern his severe condemnation of the plan to have the army carry the air mail. Mr. Dern urged him to reconsider. Meanwhile, the colonel appeared before the senate post office committee to testify concerning permanent air mail legislation.

General Foulois has been working on a plan by which army flyers could join with commercial pilots in receiving training. The step follows a suggestion by Mr. Roosevelt that "because military lessons have been taught us during the last few weeks," army aviators should train with those who "later on will fly the mail" in "night flying, blind flying and instrument flying."

TWO hundred and thirty-one Democratic members of the house kicked over the traces and, with the aid of 59 Republicans, passed the Patman bill calling for the immediate payment of the veterans' bonus with greenbacks. The President has repeatedly expressed his opposition to the measure and indicated that he would veto it if it got through congress. Its passage by the senate was unlikely.

There were only two reasonable explanations for the revolt of the Democrats. One was put in words by Representative John Y. Brown of Kentucky, a Democrat, who was in opposition. He said: "You are buying veterans' votes. You are holding out this piece of bait to get veterans' votes this summer. There is not a man in the house who believes this bill will ever become a law, and yet you sit here and vote for it for your own political welfare."

The other explanation was that many of the Democrats are resentful of the "rubber stamp" label that has been put on congress and welcomed an opportunity to break away from dictation and, as one of them said, vote as their consciences directed.

IN A new revolt against administration policy the house insisted on adding more than $200,000,000 in veterans' benefits and government pay to the federal outlays in the next fiscal year. However, this was a compromise, for the amendment adopted by the house involves a total annual expenditure of approximately $90,000,000 for veterans as compared with the $118,000,000 called for under the veterans' amendment adopted by the senate.

Briefly summarized, the house measure as sent to conference provides:

1. That all Spanish-American war veterans be restored to the pension rolls on a basis of 75 per cent of what they received prior to enactment of the economy bill last session.

2. That all World war veterans with service connected disabilities be restored to the rolls on a full basis.

3. That World war veterans with presumptive disabilities be returned to the rolls on a 75 per cent basis.

In addition, it eliminates pensions for emergency officers, pensions for the widows of the men lost in airship disasters, and knocks out the so-called Borah amendment limiting the restoration of the federal pay cut to persons receiving less than $6,000 a year.

SAMUEL INSULL, whose deportation was ordered by the Greek government, his ticket bought and his train selected by the officials, vanished from his residence in Athens between midnight and morning, and for hours the police of the country were frantically searching for him. Then it was announced that the fugitive had been arrested aboard the Greek freighter Meotis, which had been pursued by a torpedo boat destroyer. Insull was bound for Kessy, Egypt, near Alexandria, and presumably was heading for either Persia or Afghanistan.

The Athens police learned from the Insull household nothing of the way in which Insull escaped from the city. They thought he was aided by "international crooks."

The Greek government decided that Mrs. Insull was an undesirable resident and should be ejected from the country.

WALTER J. CUMMINGS, chairman of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company of Chicago, is the new treasurer of the Democratic party. The place was first offered to John S. Cohen, Atlanta publisher, but he rejected it. Mr. Cummings' first task will be the raising of funds with which to help along the election of Democratic senators and congressmen this fall. Supposedly he will also raise the money for the next Presidential campaign.

ON JULY 1 the University of Illinois will have a new president in the person of Arthur Cutts Willard, now dean of the college of engineering in the university. Mr. Willard, who is fifty-five years old, is a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and is internationally known as an authority on heating and ventilation.

THE gunboat Fulton, known as the "grief ship" of the American navy, caught fire during a storm off the China coast and had to be abandoned. The crew of 187 officers and men was rescued by two British vessels and taken to Hongkong. Only three men were injured.

JOSEPH B. EASTMAN and the Interstate Commerce commission have joined in recommending to congress legislation that will place under "the guiding hand of government control" the transportation agencies that use the highways and waterways of the country. Their report, which was submitted to the President, declares that regulation of motor and water transportation is necessary "if a threatening chaos is to be transformed into order." Such regulation, they said, should be concentrated in the Interstate Commerce commission.

In proposing changes in the interstate commerce act, the co-ordinator and the commission recommend liberalization of the long and short haul clause forbidding a railroad to charge less for a longer than a shorter haul, except on permission from the commission.

This clause is held by middle western interests to have damaged them substantially by preventing traffic moving by rail to the Pacific coast, and its repeal is now being sought.

SECRETARY OF COMMERCE ROPER obtained the approval of President Roosevelt for a new program for subsidizing the American merchant marine which he will submit to congress.

CRIMINAL action for alleged evasion of the federal income tax law was ordered by Attorney General Cummings to be brought immediately against Andrew W. Mellon, former secretary of the treasury and one of the world's wealthiest men; T. L. Sidlow of Cleveland, law partner of Newton D. Baker; Thomas S. Lamont, son of the noted financier Thomas W. Lamont and a member of the J. P. Morgan banking house, and James J. Walker, former mayor of New York.

Andrew W. Mellon

Mr. Cummings announced that the Department of Justice had conducted a secret investigation of the tax affairs of these four men and had turned the information gathered over to United States attorneys in New York, Cleveland and Pittsburgh. Grand jury action in each of those cities was expected to result. Cases against more than a score of other men were being prepared by the department's tax division.

Mr. Mellon was quick to place his case before the people. In a long statement he denied ever having failed to pay his proper income taxes and said that in the last twenty years he had paid more than $20,000,000 in this form of rates. He characterized the attorney general's action as "politics of the crudest sort." He continued:

"I feel very strongly that before the attorney general of the United States should bring a charge of this kind against me I, like any other citizen, should be given proper notice in the manner provided by law of the government's intention to assess additional taxes and should have been afforded an opportunity to meet such charges in the customary way.

"In all my years of experience in the administration of the tax laws I have never known of a single instance in which such unfair and arbitrary action has been taken."

Over in London, where Jimmy Walker is sojourning, the former playboy mayor said he was not surprised, that the authorities were only doing their duty and that he even welcomed it as an opportunity to vindicate his character.

By order of the President a new income tax procedure was put in force, designed to break up so-called "negligent" evasion of taxes. All tax returns which the government suspects of embodying willful evasion will be referred to grand juries for investigation of possible fraud.

LA LIBERTAD, most important seaport of the republic of Salvador, was almost destroyed by an explosion of dynamite on the docks and the resulting conflagration. It was believed at least 150 persons were killed.

ONE of Japan's new torpedo boats, the Tomozuru, of 527 tons, was wrecked mysteriously off the Sasebo naval base and it was believed most of her crew of 113 men were lost. The vessel was completed only February 26 last and was a new type, carrying the heaviest armament ever given a ship of its size. It was considered a triumph of Japanese naval architecture. Several others of the same type are under construction.

HARRY PIERPONT, one of John Dillinger's gang, was convicted at Lima, Ohio, of the murder of Sheriff Jess Sarber in a jail raid in which Dillinger was set free by his comrades, and was sentenced to death in the electric chair. The commander of the Ohio National Guard took every precaution to prevent the rescue of Pierpont by his resourceful chief, for Dillinger was still at large, presumably in or near Chicago.

At Crown Point, Ind., a special grand jury began investigating the easy escape of Dillinger, a special prosecutor having been named to conduct the inquiry. At present only two men, Deputy Sheriff Ernest Blunk and Turnkey Sam Cahoon, have been accused of aiding Dillinger in his jail break.

BY A vote of 15 to 8 a District of Columbia grand jury refused to return indictments in its investigation of an alleged conspiracy to defraud the government on War department contracts. Secretary Dern was highly pleased with what he called a vindication of the department.

SYNOPSIS

On the crest of the spur they halted. Directly below them lay another valley even larger than Eden Valley, but save on its eastern side it was not timbered. Nor was it, even remotely, as verdant as Eden Valley.

"There," cried Robin Kershaw triumphantly, "is the land that needs the water old Mother Nature is wastin' off yonder. Some day when we're gone, our children will build that dam I spoke of, back the floor waters up most to the crest o' this spur, cut a canal across or drive a tunnel an' lead the water off down yonder. Good farmin' valley there, Lorry."

He continued: "No, the Lord ain't treated yonder valley jest right. I reckon it gits enough rainfall to make it fair dry-farmin' land, but come a dry year or a succession o' dry years an' that valley'll sure raise a crop o' broken hearts. Lorry, I sort o' figger we'd ought to call that country yonder Forlorn Valley."

"I christen thee Forlorn Valley," the girl answered, and blew a kiss out into the solitude. Then, together, they rode down into it.

CHAPTER II

They spent that first summer in tents, while Kershaw and his men felled trees, peeled the bark from the logs and dragged them out into the sunshine to season. They dug a well, got out fence posts, and enclosed horse pasture with a stake-and-rider fence; and when the logs had been seasoned by late fall, they built a spacious and comfortable log house with a wide veranda around it.

The following spring Kershaw brought in fifteen thousand head of cattle. They were scrubs—old Spanish-Califfornia stock; but they were the only cattle he could buy and, since his feed cost him nothing, he was content with them and the profit he knew he would make after growing them out. Deer, elk, and antelope were plentiful, so he never slaughtered a steer for meat. He prospered.

For the succeeding eight years he was not disturbed. A few nesters came into the valley and set up small herds, but there was plenty of grass for everybody. After 1862, when the homestead law was enacted by congress, men began to come in and file on homesteads. Robin Kershaw and his wife immediately filed homestead grazing claims on the two sections immediately surrounding their ranch headquarters; thus, to a considerable extent, availing themselves of the first riparian rights on Eden Valley creek.

With the proclamation of the war between the states fully half the settlers in Eden Valley volunteered for service in both armies. One of the first recruits to the Union army from California was Robin Kershaw, despite the fact that he was now the father of six children.

He returned with a permanent limp in his left leg and the title of major, to find that his business had prospered. With the farms of the Middle West denuded of their cattle to a large extent by the war, beef prices were up, so Kershaw sold every head of stock he possessed and shipped them to Chicago and Kansas City via the newly built Central Pacific railroad. Then, with his checkbook, he commenced the elimination of his neighbors in Eden Valley.

By 1870 he owned in fee fifty thousand acres of Eden Valley—and then Joel Hensley, late of the Confederate army, came. Hensley had some capital and he, too, yearned for Eden Valley. He outbid Robin Kershaw for the lower half of the valley, and Kershaw let him have it, for, after all, Eden Valley was large enough for two, and Kershaw knew he had the cream of it.

Almost before he realized it was impending he had a bitter quarrel with Joel Hensley. Like Kershaw, Hensley was a Texan—a fierce, belligerent man of the breed that was responsible for the most heroic and dramatic epitaph in history:

"The Thermoplyae Had Its Messenger of Defeat—The Alamo Had None!"

Kershaw had fenced off his portion of the valley, and in common justice, he asked Joel Hensley to pay for half this fencing. Hensley, glancing sardonically over the fence at the luxuriant meadows of his neighbor, access to which this fence denied his cattle, replied coldly that he couldn't spare the money. Thereupon Kershaw patiently informed him that he would loan him the money, with cattle as security. Hensley replied that he preferred not to be in debt.

"Well, I see you intend to be unneighborly," Kershaw answered. "so we'll not argue the matter further. However, there is another matter that must be adjusted, whether you have the money or not. I am turning loose on the summer range this year five hundred pure-bred beef-type bulls. Your herd bulls are scrubs, and your cattle and mine roam the public domain together. Hence, you are bound to reap an equal benefit with me from the use of my expensive pure-bred sires. That wouldn't be fair."

"Can't help that," Hensley retorted. "I have no money to buy pure-bred range bulls and compete with you."

"I'll loan you the money, Hensley, and it will be money well invested. And you will not be doing your neighbor a gross injustice."

"Very well." And Robin Kershaw rode away.

In May the Hensley and Kershaw riders drove the cattle of their respective employers up into the summer range in the mountains. But when the Hensley riders returned to the valley the Kershaw riders remained, scoured the range and shot every scrub bull they found wearing "Bar H," the Hensley brand. Also they maintained a patrol all summer and rather effectually succeeded in keeping the Hensley cattle on a sequestered portion of the range. The result was that the Bar H had a 10 per cent calf crop that year while the Circle K (the Kershaw outfit) had 80 per cent.

Joel Hensley was torn between a desire to kill Kershaw or permit him to live, in order that he might borrow from him sufficient money to purchase pure-bred beef-type bulls. Finally he decided on the latter course.

Robin Kershaw saw him coming, so he buckled on a six-shooter and went to meet him. "Well?" he demanded coldly.

"Guess I'll have to buy them pure-bred range bulls, neighbor." Joel

"Lorry, I Sort o' Figger We'd Ought to Call That Country Yonder Forlorn Valley."

Hensley forced a sheepish grin. "If you're still of a mind to let me have the money—"

"The situation has changed a mite since I made you that fair offer, Hensley." Kershaw's voice was very cold. "Your scrub bulls don't worry me now, so I'm not interested in helping you out. I wanted to be a good neighbor, but you wouldn't have it, so now we're enemies, and if you expect to drag yourself off the Circle K under your own power I reckon you'd better be startin' now."

Without a word Hensley wheeled his horse and departed. He had earned his humiliation and he realized it; yet the realization did not allay the fury that possessed him. Nor did he consider so seriously thereafter the advisability of killing Kershaw; he knew now that Kershaw was suspicious of him, else why had the latter appeared with a pistol at his hip? Evidently Kershaw would kill eagerly enough if driven to it; that he would back up for no man Hensley felt assured.

And there was Robin Kershaw II to be reckoned with, also. So he realized the danger of clashing with a prideful clan that was still fond of tracing its "kin folk" back a few centuries to a coat-of-arms!

So he nursed his hatred, borrowed money from a distant bank and bought pure-bred beef-type bulls. Indeed, he had to, or get out of the cattle business.

But Robin Kershaw was not yet through with him. Followed three years of subnormal snowfall in the mountains; hence, when the spring freshet came, Eden Valley creek overflowed but a tithe of the territory that was flooded in years of normal snowfall. But Robin Kershaw had put in a concrete diversion dam at the upper end of his ranch, backed the water up and over the low banks and led it by irrigation ditches all over his meadows. He could have permitted the water from these ditches to run under the line fence between his ranch and Hensley's, thus insuring Hensley the customary hay crop and pasture. But Kershaw turned the water, when he was through with it, back into the channel of Eden Valley creek.

Of course there was nothing Hensley could do about this. Kershaw had the first use of the water and when he turned it back into the channel at the boundary line he was quite within the law.

Kershaw put up his customary tonnage of hay that year and wintered his cattle well. Hensley had but a quarter of the hay he required and wintered his cattle poorly; and thin, undernourished cattle produce poor, undernourished calves and a lessened quantity of them.

Following the second year of subnormal snowfall in the mountains he suffered even greater losses. The third year he could stand it no longer. Again he called on Robin Kershaw. He rode up to the latter's house and before the gate held up his hand, palm outward, in the old Indian sign of peace. Nevertheless, Robin Kershaw came out with a pistol on his hip; on the front veranda Robin II fondled a repeating rifle and watched Hensley as a cat watches a gopher hole.

"Kershaw," Hensley began, "you're ruining me."

"That's a lie. You've ruined yourself."

"I've got to have more water this year," Hensley shrilled. "When you're through with the water I want you to run it under the fence to my ditches. If you don't, by G—d, we'll argue this in the smoke. It's plain dirty of you to run it back into the creek again."

"Well, I suppose I could run it into your ditches," Kershaw mused.

"See that you do," Hensley reminded him, and rode off, little realizing that he had made an error of judgment. He thought he had bluffed Robin Kershaw.

When Kershaw was finished with his irrigation that summer, Hensley connected his lower irrigation ditches with Kershaw's and the water started running merrily down over the Hensley meadows. But almost immediately the flow ceased. Kershaw had opened the water gate on his diversion dam and turned the water back into the channel of the creek at the upper end of his ranch instead of the lower!

Hensley was now in a most unpleasant predicament. In the presence of witnesses (Robin II and two of the Kershaw cowboys) he had threatened, if denied the water, to argue the issue with Robin I in the smoke. "He'll make good," Robin Kershaw I decided. And he and his sons and his riders all rode armed with pistols and rifles.

But again Joel Hensley visited the Circle K. "Kershaw," he called from the front gate, "I'll pay for my share of that fence. With interest," he added.

"I don't need the money," Kershaw taunted him. "And I doubt if you'd maintain your share of the upkeep of that fence. How would you like to sell out to me? That's the best and easiest way to shed your water troubles. I'll meet you in a liberal spirit for the sake of peace. Eden Valley," he added, "ain't big enough for us both."

Two weeks later, as he rode in alone from the nearest settlement, Joel Hensley rode out on Kershaw from a clump of pines. Neither man hesitated; it did not occur to either to ask questions; simultaneously they drew and fired.

Mark, now the perversity of Fate. Had each killed the other the feud which, for the next forty years, was to make of Eden Valley a dark and bloody ground, would have ended then. But Joel Hensley's first cartridge had a defective primer—and Robin Kershaw's did not. Whereupon, a coroner's jury at Gold Run, the county seat, returned a verdict of justifiable homicide and restored Robin Kershaw to the bosom of his family. But Joel Hensley left a son—several sons in fact—and these inherited the casus belli.

CHAPTER III

No relatives, outside the immediate descendants of the Kershaw and Hensley clans, ever participated in the feud started by that defective primer, for it was a point of honer with both clans to "kill their own snakes." During three generations eleven Kershaws and four hired gunmen died with their boots on and two went to state's prison for varying terms. Of the Hensleys thirteen were killed, with five gunmen.

Neither side ever complained to the authorities; as they often said they preferred the good old six-volume law! Only very inquisitive sheriffs invaded Eden Valley seeking redress for the outraged law; and of the half-dozen who did, two, who knew too much, never returned.

At that, the feud surely must have died of inanition at times when the count on each side was even, but for the perennial casus belli of water. Years of lean snowfall in the mountains were years of lean profit for the Hensleys. Despite this disadvantage, the Hensleys prospered in the cattle business to the point where, in the year 1900, they were enabled to put in a diversion dam of their own in Eden Valley creek.

In 1917 there remained of the clan Kershaw its chief, Ranceford Kershaw, a widower of fifty, permanently crippled by reason of a soft-nosed bullet through his hip; his son, Owen, aged twenty, and a daughter, Lorraine, aged sixteen. Of the clan Hensley there remained three women, Angie Tichenor, a widow, and Hattie and Beulah Hensley, both old maids.

It was assumed, locally, that in the fullness of time Nathan Tichenor and Owen Kershaw would shoot it out together; hence, with one or both of the young men out of the way there should be peace, at last, in Eden Valley.

But the World war intervened. Neither Owen Kershaw nor Nathan Tichenor waited to be drafted.

War with Germany, it will be remembered, was declared on April 6, 1917. In March a furious freshet had washed out the Hensley diversion dam in Eden Valley creek. On the morning of April 7 Nathan Tichenor rode up to the gate in the white paling fence before the old log ranch-house of the clan Kershaw, and, like his fire-eating grandfather, help up his hand, palm outward, in the old frontier sign of peace. From the veranda crippled Rance Kershaw glared down at him.

"Our diversion dam went out last month," said young Nate.

"Pleased to hear it, young man. Well?"

"I'm going down to San Francisco tomorrow to enlist—"

"That's to your credit, if I do say so." Old Rance appeared to thaw perceptibly. "Still, you're a mite slow doin' your duty. My boy, Owen, left this morning."

"I wish him luck, Mr. Kershaw. What I came for was to ask you if you'd consider favorably the suggestion that one war at a time is enough for our people to be engaged in. Our dam's out, and I ask you, as a favor, to let us have the water after it's done its work for you."

"Why should you ask me a favor? And why should I grant it, young man?"

"Because my mother and my aunts have got to run our outfit while I'm in the army. I didn't figure you'd make war on women."

"How about the old fence bill, young man?"

Young Nate laid a check on the gate post. "My grandfather should have paid that, Mr. Kershaw. It was right low and ornery of him not to. There's a check for it, with interest for forty years at 6 per cent added."

Science at Last Has Overcome Bar to Progress of Skin Transplanting

Surgeons for years have been able to transplant skin from one part of a person's body to another, says the Literary Digest, but tissue transplanted from one person to another almost invariably dies within a few weeks, probably because of slight differences in the composition of the blood, which hinder the transplanted cells in establishing themselves at the new site.

A method by which this difficulty may be met was announced recently by Dr. Harvey B. Stone, associate professor of surgery at Johns Hopkins School of Medicine, Baltimore. In collaboration with Dr. J. C. Owings and George O. Gey, Doctor Stone has been able successfully to transplant thyroid and parathyroid gland tissue from one person to another by growing it for a time outside the body in a culture medium made from the blood serum of the prospective recipient.

In this way, he explained, the tissue becomes adapted to its future host, and when transplanted grows quite normally and survives indefinitely. An important feature is that only a few cells from the healthy gland are needed, and this missing tissue is readily replaced in the normal person.

This discovery, if other physicians are as successful with it as Doctor Stone and his associates, may be of the greatest practical importance. Individuals who have lost some essential gland may be permanently cured by transplantation. In the past such persons have required daily treatment for life with gland extracts. Further experimentation along the lines suggested by Doctor Stone may bring nearer the time when whole limbs or organs may be transplanted.

THE INADEQUACY OF GOLD

The growing agitation for monitization of silver develops from the fact that the world's supply of gold has proven itself insufficient to carry on the increasingly complex operations of international commerce. All the monetary gold in the world is not sufficient to pay off the foreign gold bonds held by the people of the United States, and the debts owed to the American government by other nations.

The world's monetary gold, outside of that held by France and the United States (which two countries control $7,000,000,000 of a world total of $11,000,000,000), if divided among the peoples of all other countries, would amount to but $2.30 per capita.

The silver movement is definitely on the rise. And among it's most zealous advocates are thousands of American businessmen who believe that a fixed ratio between the values of the two metals is essential to world recovery and stability.

WHEN THE WORMS BEGIN TO TURN

"Come," said father Plymouth,
"Bring each chick and child;
We must go exploring,
Now the weather's mild.
For the neighbor's garden
I've begun to yearn;
There's joy in honest scratching
When the worms begin to turn!"

Handsome mother Plymouth
Called her fulffy brood;
For her husband's orders
Pleased her springtime mood.
"Come dears, follow father,
Each of you must learn,
The joy of honest scratching
When the worms begin to turn."

Farmer Bill had planted
Many little seeds
Which he thought would surely
Sprout and grow like weeds;
When the Plymouths find them,
Craws exultant burn;
Oh the joy of scratching
When the worms begin to turn!

Such a sorry garden—
Wrecked from end to end!
Plymouth called his cronies,
Each one told a friend;
When our William finds them,
Hot words sizz and burn;
Hang this beastly scratching
When the worms begin to turn!

A. Merriam Conner.

TRANSAMERICA REPORTS PROFIT GAIN OF 42 PCT.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 24th—Reflecting both increased income and the effect of rigid operating economies, Transamerica Corporation's annual report for the year ended December 31, 1933 shows a gain of 42.32 per cent net profits over the preceeding 12 months' period.

The consolidated net profit of the Transsamerica Corporation, holding companies and all controlled subsidiaries, for 1933 was $11,339,639, or 48 cents a share on 23,681,926 outstanding shares of capital stock. This compares with net of $7,967,254 earned in 1932, equal to 34 cents a share on the 23,368,186 capital shares then outstanding.

Substantial reductions in the expenses of Transamerica and its holding companies, instituted by the present management after its return to control in 1932, resulted in further savings in operating costs for last year. Total expenses of Transamerica and its holding companies for 1933 amounted to $1,211,698, or a decline of $907,868 from the previous year's total.

The operating economies are even more striking when brought out by figures reflecting the savings in expenses of all controlled branches.

The consolidated balance sheet of Transamerica and holding companies as of December 31, 1933 shows that notes payable to banks and accounts payable have been reduced by $6,505,376 during the past year. Cash increased 44.17 per cent.

Investments in controlled subsidiaries as of December 31, 1933, carrieid on the books at $163,105,220, had net asset value of $165,396,481 after eliminating all good will and going concern value, as well as the value of insurance in force with insurance companies controlled by Transamerica.

The company increased its holding in the stock of National City Bank by 28,828 shares last year, bringing the total number of shares held tto 588,193. Investments in controlled subsidiaries also were increased.

Aggregate resources of the four domestic banks controlled by Transamerica, as shown in reports to the Comptroller of the Currency or to state banking departments, on December 31 last amounted to $1,050,571,748, which compares with $962,505,875 at the end of the previous year. Deposits of the same banks at the close of 1933 totalled $872,489,265, which compares wtih $780,19,689 reported 12 months previous-

By CHRISTIAN ANDERSEN

If I had needed an inspiration to write my weekly screed, it would have been easy to wait for Toscanini's 67th birthday concert. He celebrated by conducting the New York Symphony ochestra himself. After having filled the soul with the music, which defies description, I might have written on almost any subject. However, the inspiration came from a different source, an unexpected one in fact. Early in the week the doctor ordered the Mrs. to bed and to stay there for about a week. When I came home from work one evening because of that order I had to cook dinner for us all. We got along the first night and the next morning. It was while away the next day that our neighbors entered the scene, from then on we had no worries. They brought my wife a delicious breakfasts, lunches and dinners. One took the washing home and it came back clean as a whistle. It really seemed as if our neighbors thought of everything. We have a different understanding of what being a neighbor means, and because of this we will be better neighbors.

The everlasting struggle between capital and labor goes merrily on, this time on practically virgin ground viz the auto industry. This has hitherto been kept free of these struggles, at least in the aspect we now have of the A. F. L. determined to break into this hitherto non-union industry. All we on the sidelines can do is to hope for the best.

The report of John M. Grant president of Transamerica Corporation, to stockholders, says in part: "In the annual report of your Board for the year 1932, it was stated that dividends would be resumed when your board of directors were convinced that they could be maintained without strain on the financial structure of the corporation. In January of this year it was the opininon of your directors that the earnings of Transamerica Corporation, holding companies and all controlled subsidiaries for the year 1933 justified the resumption of dividends.

"Accordingly your directors declared a dividend at the rate of 12 and ½ cents per share payable on January 31, 1934, to the stockholders of record January 16. The total disbursement was $2,954,879."

Rev. Father O' Reilly visited Fr. McGarry in Maxwell last week, returning home Wednesday. While there he assisted in a high mass for Father McGarry's father who had just passed away in Ireland.

BULL DOZERS AT WORK ON PASQUALE ROAD

The combined CWA crews of Supervisors Alex Robison and Cary Arbogast, have been working on the old Pasquali road leading into the Quaker Hill section, for nearly two weeks. They have two bull dozers at work grading.

The Pasquali road will do away with the steep Quaker Hill grade that has given so much trouble in the past.

Mrs. Otto E. Schiffner and son Cecil, left early for a brief visit in the bay region. Today they will attend the golden wedding anniversary celebration of Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Button, aunt and uncle of Mrs. Schiffner. The affair will be a large family reunion dinner, followed by a reception at the Woman's Club house in Mountain View.

FRENCH CORRAL
(By Mrs. Kate M. Sulivan)

FRENCH CORRAL, March 23.—Delightful spring weather continues in our section but the past few days have been cooler, with some indications of rain.

Many are busy with pruning and preparing for the summer garden.

With the sounds of machinery and blasting we know that work is going on steadily.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Kirkpatrick and son Lawrence who were of our community last year, have returned to French Corral after an absence of several months and hope to make it their future home. It has ever been true that those who have lived here always want to return.

We learn that the Birchville school attendance has increased to 10 pupils.

Mr. and Mrs. Lehman are newcomers to Birchville, where they are located in the old time O'Mara place now the property of Mr. A. T. O'Connor. Mr. Lehman is employed as foreman in the Boss mine. located at Sweetland.

Mr. and Mrs. Beaw, of Birchville, have bought a 4-acre tract of land a portion of the old Allen property and intend to build a home there. He and his wife were visiting in French Corral Sunday.

Mr. A. Browning has returned to his work at the Murchie mine in Neada City. He was laid up for a short time on account of an accident in which he injured his side.

Al Jaynes and family made a trip to Camptonville Sunday to visit with relatives.

Mrs. Sara Cloutier, and Mrs. Eliza Shurtleff, of Nevada City were visiors in their old home town of French Corral on March 17th and spent a happy day going over the old haunts and meeting the few old time friends who still with us. The ravages of fire and time have made so many changes that they remarked, "Nothing looks familiar but the wild flowers" which are growing everywhere, and they had the pleasure of picking and wearing the golden poppies which grow here in all their splendor.

Mrs. Cloutier taught in Washington and later entered Civil Service and for many years taught at the Indian Training School at Chewawa, Oregon for many years. Later she had charge of the rentals at the Agency at Pendleton, Oregon, where she still makes her home. She was born and raised in French Corral, where her parents the late Mr. and Mrs. Philo M. Williams, were among the early pioneers. She had spent the winter in San Diego and is so charmed with its climate that she plans to spend the winters there in the future.

The frineds of Frank Murphy of Mountezuma Hill, will be pleased to learn that he is slowly improving after many weeks of illness. He hopes ere long to regain strength to warrant his removal from the Nevada City Sanitarium to his home in Montezuma Hill. His sister, Mrs. William Provis and brother Albert Murphy are in constant attendance at his bedside.

Mrs. Clara Scarfe is leaving Tuesday for a short trip along the coast on account of her health.

IN MUSIC, TOO

A pianist of exceptional ability was visiting an Indiana city and was asked to play for the pupils of a junior high school.

The children were thoroughly appreciative and spent some time after the concert in discussing the art and the selections that had been played.

"Miss S—— puts so much expression in her music," said one.

"Yes, she certainly puts the right expression in,' said another, "but the thing that interested me most was her wonderful technocracy."—Indianapolis News.

Here's a Laugh

The pretty girl sat in the corner of the compartment next to her young man, her niece on her knee. The train dashed into a tunnel, and suddenly the other passengers heard the little girl exclaim: "Kiss me, too, Auntie Violet!"

"Mavis," said Aunt Violet, quickly, "you should say 'Kiss me twice.' Kiss me two is not good grammar."

SMALL HOME NOW ADVOCATED TO END DEPRESSION

The very best thing to complete the rout of the depression would be a nationwide building program, adding 50,000,000 to 75,000,000 rooms to American homes by use of private capital. So said President Henry I. Harriman of the United States Chamber of Commerce at Buffalo a few days ago. Such a program, he insisted, would do for business what the automobile did a few years ago. And this would be no sudden spurt, for, in Mr. Harriman's opinion, it would take ten years to build merely the houses necessary for a minimum standard of decency and comfort. He estimates the total cost of construction alone at close to $40,000,000,000. And to that may be added more billions for furnishings.

A survey conducted by the National Association of Real Estate Boards in 273 cities reveals a shortage of single family houses in 27 per cent of the cities, and a shortage of apartment space in the smaller cities. The home shortage is more pronounced in the smaller cities and is especially noticeable in New England, the Pacific coast, and the West South Central section.

What this country needs, declared the Southern Lumberman, is not model apartments but small individual homes. And by small homes it does not mean houses costing around $9,000—for which there is, indeed, a market—but houses costing in the neighborhood of $3,000 or $4,000. For these there is a much greater demand, and "the architects and builders and promoters seem to have forgotten that there ever was that kind of a house."

The Southern Lumberman thinks that if means could be found to finance such building it would open a very large untapped field of activity.—Literary Digest.

Men May Regain Color in Formal Dress Wear

Observers have noted that it is the timidity of man that keeps him in submission to drab evening dress, while it is the males among other mammals and birds that strut like Solomon in all his glory. Occasionally some bolder soul revolts, as with Mark Twain and his white evening dress. But most men hide their secret yearning rather than face possible ridicule.

To these there should be some gratification in the effort of Budapest tailors to revive the use of national dress for men at formal functions. The Hungarian costume, which has been adapted into some of the smarter cavalry uniforms, is picturesque enough to lend itself to a first step in this direction.

If the Hungarians get away with it, others may follow, and once more the masculine spirit can revel in color and dash. Already Greek judges are wearing togas on the bench. Why not at social affairs? The Highland kilt with its great variety of plaids offers leeway for the Scotch. In almost every older land there is a native costume that lends romance to the wearer.

In America the case might be more difficult. The Indian, while he went in for gorgeous bonnets for formal wear, otherwise might often have been mistaken for a neophyte working up to the higher degrees of nudism. And if instead of this native costume, American men adopted the dress of the strains from which they sprang, the result might be rather like a fancy dress ball.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Common Sense Applied to Hot-Weather Garb

It wasn't until 1910 that men's summer clothes were thin enough; and seersuckers were the pioneers. And a monument to the man who invented tropical worsteds! If we have our sartorial history with us in serviceable accuracy, seersuckers appeared long before the date mentioned. They came from India and the pucker in them is caused by holding the threads in the warp more loosely than the other threads during the process of weaving. All ancient peoples in tropical lands would have none of your trouserings "holding in the heat," but wore gowns in some form, long or short. You can't induce civilized man to do this, but he might be persuaded to compromise on knickerbockers slightly below the knee and wide open at the bottom. You see this in the Bavarian native costume; and Dutchmen of medieval Holland wore them.—F. H. Collier, in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

THE EGYPTIANS HAD THEM

Those graphic charts used to indicate the chills and fever of modern finance have been traced as far back as several thousand years before the Christian era. According to Eugene A. Skehan, speaking to the convention of the United States Building and Loan league in Chicago, the first effort to present facts graphically was the enumeration of the armies in Egyptian hieroglyphics. The use of a point with reference to a system of co-ordinates dates from a Greek geographer of the Third century B. C., claims this statistician.—Literary Digest.

DR. HAWKINS INSTALLS NEW X-RAY MACHINE

Dr. Walter J. Hawkins has installed equipment that thoroughly modernizes his dentist office, giving his patrons every facility that offices in metropolitan centers afford.

A new X-Ray machine for taking pictures of teeth and jaw structures has been installed. This machine is the last word in specialized appliances of this kind. With it Dr. Hawkins is able to determine not only if teeth are abcessed, crooked or decayed at the root, but he can determine malformations, perceive broken roots, or teeth that have never come through. These studies are important in any kind of dental operation but are vital to success in installing plates of false teeth.

A dark room completes Dr. Hawkin's X-ray service. In he develops the negatives and is able to show his clients exactly the condition of their teeth.

Dr. Hawkins also maintains a well equipped laboratory and a specialist in manufacturing plates. Other dentists bring their work to his laboratory after taking wax impressions and plates are there made with scientific care and precision.
